Good Food Habits for Boys and Girls
The rate of growth in a child after eight years is not as rapid nor is his digestive tract as sensitive as in earlier years, but his food habits should be safeguarded no less diligently. Nervous and indigestion, due to hours of confinement and mingling with others, may seriously affect the appetite for good, wholesome food. Forty-two percent of the lowered vitality among children is due to poor and inadequate food and to incorrect dietary habits.

A regular meal schedule should be established and food forbidden at all other times. The child should never be allowed to go to school without a warm breakfast, and then eat a solid sandwich at recess or later. A child does not have reserve material which makes it possible for him to go without food for this interval of time. The child who habitually skips breakfast will suffer from under-nutrition. Warm food promotes easy and rapid digestion and gives vigor to body and mind.

A few well-chosen dishes should compose the meals for children, but new dishes or appeals to imagination are helpful in inducing them to eat proper food. The child's sense of taste is keen in early school years. Highly flavored foods should not be served to children, since they destroy appetite for good, wholesome, mild flavored food.

Eggs, milk, sweet meat, and other staples should be used liberally in the diet. Most should be served sparingly, even until high school age, never more than once a day. Green vegetables, from whole grain meal, and cereal should be included in the diet. Sweetened condensed milk, fruit, and ice cream may be used for same purpose.

Rich pastries and fried foods should be forbidden. Drinking of milk should be encouraged, but tea and coffee should be forbidden. A quart of milk for each person under 16, and a pint for each over this age is a good rule. This includes the amount served in soups, desserts, etc.

Children should form the habit of drinking water freely. They should eat slowly and chew food well. Wiping over food should not be permitted. Sincerely promotes good digestion.

Dislike for foods should never be discussed before children. Teach them to enjoy good, wholesome food.

A Variety of Pancakes.

ENGLISH PANCAKES.
Sift together one cupful of flour, one teaspoonful of baking powder and a pinch of salt. Add two eggs beaten with one tablespoonful of sugar and diluted with one pint of milk and one cupful of cream; mix with a stiff batter. Use a small, round frying pan and melt a little butter in it. Pour about one-half a cupful of batter in it; use the back of the spoon to spread the batter over the whole surface of the pan. Put it on a hot fire, turn and brown the other side. Butter each pancake and roll it up, sprinkle with powdered sugar.

FRENCH PANCAKES.
Make a batter by beating together three spoonfuls of cornstarch, five raw eggs, a little powdered sugar and a little water. Add enough milk to make the consistency of porridge. Butter well the inside of the frying pan and put it over a moderate fire. When hot, pour in a large spoonful of the batter and shake the pan so as to make it cover the whole surface. When the pancake is done put it on a dish and sprinkle the surface with a little sugar or cover with jelly. Fold into four.

SCOTTISH PANCAKES.
Take six ounces of flour and very thoroughly mix it with one ounce of melted butter, the yolk of one egg and two spoonfuls of cream. Add a pinch of salt and very gradually a quarter of a pint of milk or cream. Beat with a wooden spoon until the mixture is smooth and blended. This batter is better when made two or three hours before needed. Just before using add the white of an egg, beaten to a solid froth. Have an omelet-pan hot and put in some hot drippings or butter. Pour in the batter so that the pancakes will be one-eighth of an inch thick. When cooked at the bottom put pan into a hot oven so that the pancakes will cook to the top. Slide out of the pan, serve with lemon cut in quarters and powdered sugar, or apple sauce.

BREAD GRIDDLE CAKES.
Pour one and one-half cupfuls of hot milk and two tablespoonfuls of melted butter over one and one-half cupfuls of stale bread crumbs and soak until they are soft. Add two well-beaten eggs, one-half a cupful of flour, half a teaspoonful of salt and three and one-half teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Cook on hot greased griddle.

Best Height for Table and Sink.
Is your permanent kitchen equipment substantial, easy to keep in order, carefully grouped and set at such heights that you do not have to stoop or strain your muscles as you work? Sink, stove and work-table should be kept together as to save steps. Scattered equipment means walking many unnecessary miles during the course of a year, the United States Department of Agriculture has estimated. If the kitchen table is so arranged that it can be easily moved where needed, thus saving steps. The various kitchen tasks can be done most comfortably at different heights. Sinks especially are often set too low, 30 inches from the bottom of the sink to the floor is considered good average height. Experiment until you find the best height for your table, ironing board, and washbasin. The table can be raised on blocks hollowed out to fit the legs, and with a little ingenuity you can adjust the ironing board and tubs.

To Remove Tarnish from Metal.
The tarnish on copper, brass and bronze is copper carbonate. It may be removed by friction, or dissolved in weak acids. Rottenstone mixed with oil to a creamy consistency is the common substance used on these metals. After this clean or has been applied the metal should be polished with a soft cloth. A final rubbing with dry rottenstone or whiting will give the metal an even brighter lustre.

Oxalic-acid solution, buttermilk, or vinegar, especially when warmed, quickly dissolves the tarnish on these metals. All traces of these cleaning agents must be removed, however, or the metal will tarnish again very quickly. Washing the metal in water, drying it and rubbing it with dry whiting is usually effective. The whiting not only takes up moisture but polishes by friction.

Freezing Ice at Home.—In making ice cream at home in the winter time one has had a great deal of difficulty in putting water out to freeze for this purpose, because of the damage done to the buckets or pans used for freezing the water. This has now been solved by placing in the water a stick or spoon. This prevents any damage to the vessel, and has been so valuable to us that we wish to pass it on.

Orange Tea Biscuits.—One afternoon when I was expecting a number of friends, I wanted to prepare a variety of biscuits. Boldly I tried this method, which proved more than a success. Using my recipe for baking the biscuits, I cut out the biscuits and put them in the pans. On the top of each small circle of dough I placed a half-cube of sugar; then I squeezed a very small quantity of jelly over each piece of sugar. The biscuits baked just the way the results were delicious.

Eggless Cake.—One cup sour cream, 1 cup milk, 1 1/2 cups sugar, 3 cups flour, teaspoon of soda.

Where Extra Service is Demanded Firestone Cords Predominate

WHEREVER the exacting and tests of tires are most severe—there you will find Firestone Cords in universal use.

The hard jobs seek Firestone. And so well has Firestone responded under difficult conditions—so consistently has mileage mounted to totals impossible to obtain from ordinary tires that today Most Miles per Dollar is the buying slogan of thinking motorists everywhere.

The blending and tempering of rubber, gum-dipped cord construction, air-bag cure—all these mileage methods have been developed by men whose life work is the production of constantly increasing tire values for the public.

Users in this vicinity verify Firestone reputation, and report almost daily some new Firestone record of extra distance travelled.

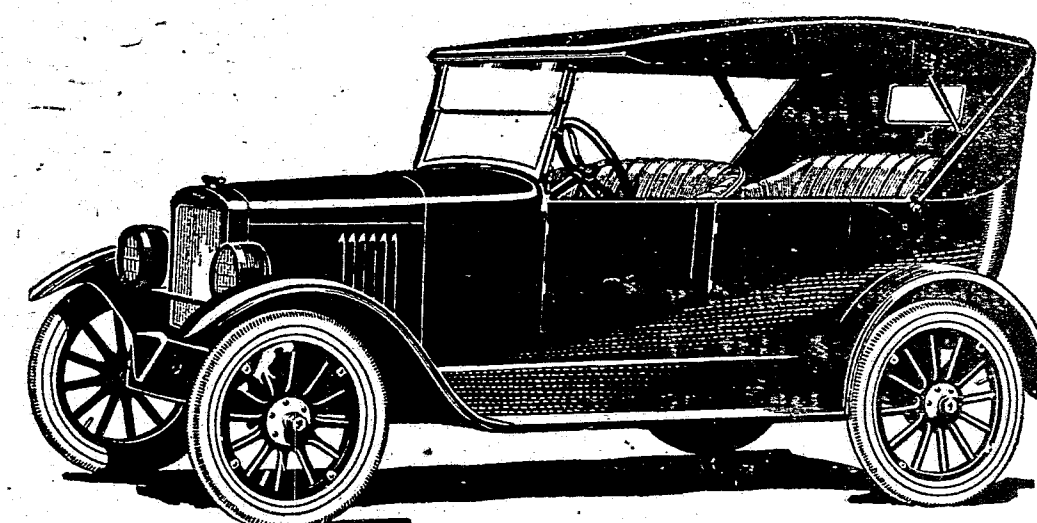

Don't be satisfied to buy tires—buy values—the longest mileage at the lowest price consistent with such reliable performance.

Make Most Miles per Dollar your principle of tire economy—choose your next tire on that basis.
